

Mr. William Burke

William Burke is a red team lead, where he manages and operates cybersecurity engagements in support of entities within the private and public sector. With fifteen years across the intelligence and cyber security fields, he has served in his current role since 2015, where he contributed to the foundations and technologies that evolved into today's operational Red Team. In his spare time, he also teaches a self-developed course as an Adjunct Graduate Professor in Marymount University's cybersecurity program.
